This antiphonal chant is part of the liturgy for Maundy Thursday. Both the monodic and the polyphonic parts are identical for all verses. Sections marked with "Tutti" can be sung by the entire congregation. In this case the antiphon should be sung each time first by a soloist because otherwise the onset of the antiphon is somewhat surprising for the congregation. Alternatively, the choir can sing the entire piece, in which case the antiphon is sung unisono by the entire choir, and is repeated only at the very beginning. Verses marked with "Solo I" and "Solo II" should be sung by different soloists, who join in the verses marked with "Solo I & II".

Translation: Where charity and love, there is God. Christ's love has gathered us in one. Let us rejoice and be pleased in him. Let us fear and love the living God, and love each other with a sincere heart. Where charity... As we are gathered in one, beware that we are not divided in our spirit. Let malign strife go, let controversy cease, and in our midst be God Christ. Where charity... May we see together with the Saints Thy face in glory, God Christ, with joy that is immense and good unto the world without end. Where charity and love, there is God.
